

Chimhavira Overland Safari News

When you are lucky enough to be doing something truly amazing every month it is difficult to find a trip that truly sticks out. 2011 has brought about some amazing and very exciting trips; two recent ones will remain in our minds for a very, very long time to come.

Charlie Eyre's trip "...we have driven the Skeleton Coast, wandered along some of the remotest roads in Namibia and negotiated what should have been some of the driest areas in Africa."

The most recent...

The Bruhin Safari "Our adventure took us into Botswana; we have driven up close and personnel with Lion, Rhino and Elephant, slept under a star studded African sky in wild bush areas and negotiated many kilometres of pot holed dirt roads, testimony to the recent rains."

Both trips talk about the amazing rains in Southern Africa this year, the sky's have delivered a new lease on life and Chimhavira has embraced the opportunity to show off a very magical continent.

There have been a number of developments with Chimhavira this year, not only have we planned trips up to the Source of the Zambezi, in the final stages of planning to canoe the Zambezi, Source to Mouth in 2012, we have set up a trip to go and see the Gorillas in Uganda, introduced Mozambique Horse Riding Safaris to our guests, quite literally wet our guests appetites by rafting the Batoka Gorge and yet somehow we have still found time to be doing quite a bit here in our beautiful South Africa, from arranging a wedding in August to running photographic workshops in Johannesburg.

Our 4x4 vehicle hire is going well and our vehicle hire folks are exploring some very cool places. Destinations are far and wide, Mana Pools (Zimbabwe), Chobe (Botswana), Gorongosa (Mozambique) and in one case Selous National Park (Tanzania).

So what are we looking at next? Very good question, we are looking at our guests requirements, we are looking to explore more of Africa and find those hidden gems in the middle of nowhere.
